

G. O. P. Is Slow About Asking Women's Help

Though Both Parties Have Huge Deficits, Republicans Hide Financial Worries While Democrats Openly Hope Women Will Assist in Raising Funds

BY CAROLYN VANCE.
Special Correspondent of The Standard-Examiner.

WASHINGTON, June 24.—Stubbornly refusing to ask the aid of their women, the Republicans are setting doggedly about repelling the party charges. The Democrats on the other hand are not so shy, and soon a committee of 100 women will be announced which will be known as the national women's finance committee of the Democratic party.

The woman within the Republican party is the position of the pampered and petted wife of a reputedly wealthy man who keeps his financial worries to himself. The Democrat woman is like the wife of the man who is poor and proud of it and who asks his wife to be a helpmate as well as a help-eat.

The Republican party is not lamenting in public that they are in need of funds, because they have the traditional pose to maintain that they are the "opulent party." The Democrats have always featured the fact that they are poor and have not even minded the appellation the "great unwashed host of democracy."

The fact remains that both parties emerged from the last presidential election with huge deficits and with the congressional campaign already upon them, financial aid from women could well be used by both parties.

EXPERIENCES IN CHURCH.
The experience first gained by women in conducting profitable church suppers and fairs will stand them in good stead in politics where huge sums of money are needed in the modern political campaign.

"Women are good at raising money," says Mrs. Harriet Taylor Upton, the leader of the Republican women, "and they can make it go twice as far."

"However," she continued, "I am not living awake nights thinking of ways to tease 'em into giving me that responsibility."

The Democrats fully realize the capabilities of women, and none of them believe that women are far more adept at raising money than the men. An observer at the last meeting of the Democratic national committee was struck with the mental activity the committeewomen exhibited along financial lines.

WOMEN HAVE MANY PLANS.

The women seemed to be able to present more plans for raising money than the men and in more detail. They were very ingenious about it, but the plans were not always practical. For some of the plans the machinery to carry them out would have been very cumbersome. Other financial plans proposed by the women were extremely clever and adapted to the committee as a whole. Most of the com-mitteewomen were cock-sure that they could raise the quota from their state and in many instances they raised more money than the committeemen.

The Republicans are overlooking a good thing when they do not utilize the financial capability of Mrs. Harriet Taylor Upton. She was the treasurer of the American Women's Suffrage association and carried the greater part of the burden of financing the cause during the lean years when suffrage was not the popular movement among women that it became later. She tells this characteristic story of herself.

RECALLS EARLY STRUGGLE.
"A long time ago the American Women's Suffrage association planned to hold a big meeting here in Washington where we hoped to raise a lot of money. I made all arrangements and paid $1,000 for the use of the Columbia theatre. On the day planned the crowd failed to come to our meeting. We were left very much in the hole. It was up to me to borrow the thousand to pay for the theatre, but as a person who looks poor seldom has success in borrowing money, I took Mrs. Cass along, who looks rich, in going to see a wealthy woman I knew who might advance the funds. She lent us the money. But it was a long terrible struggle for us to pay it back. When we finally managed to pay Mrs. Cass sent me a letter with the canceled note, stating:

"Dear Harriet: Stick to it in your mirror to remind you that it is always easier to borrow money than it is to pay it back."

"If I had really carried out Mrs. Cass's suggestion and stuck all of my canceled notes in my mirror, there would not be room enough for me to powder my nose."

NOVELTY IN GIVING.
Mrs. Blair Bannister, sister of Senator Carter Glass of Virginia, who is making arrangements for the Democratic headquarters for the women's financial committee, has made some interesting observations on the woman campaign contributor.

"There is novelty for women in being a campaign contributor. We do not get the same wearisome response from them that we do from the men. For men within the party it is no novelty to be asked for money to carry on the work. As a rule it means much more sacrifice for a woman to give to the party than it does for men, because they have their own bank account or allowances. In some instances, Republican husbands whose wives are Democrats will not allow them to give, we have learned. Most of the money earned by the women committee will be used to promote organization work among Democratic women."

WOMAN TOO WEAK TO WALK

Now Works Nine Hours a Day—
Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Restored Her Strength

Union Village, Vt.—"I was weak and nervous and all run-down. I could not walk across the floor without resting and I had been that way for weeks. I saw your advertisement in the paper and after taking one bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I felt the good it was doing me and I took seven more in all. Before I finished I was able to work nine hours a day in a steam laundry. I cannot say too much in favor of your medicine. I trust all sick and suffering women will take it. It has been two years since I took it and I am strong and well."

—Mrs. L. A. GUMANN, Union Village, Vermont.

This is only one of such letters we are continually publishing showing what Lydia E. Pinkham has done for women, and whether you work or not Mrs. Gumann's letter should interest you.

Many women get into a weak, nervous run-down condition because of ailments they often have. Such women should take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound at the first sign of trouble. Good health is necessary and this splendid medicine will help you to keep it.
